CLOSING THOUGHTS

CLOSING THOUGHTS ON THIS PUPPY

Miss War Hammer: This little pup has me stumped as she is so low activity I can't tell if she is behind on her milestones, or just really lazy and low energy. She loves to be picked up and will stare into your eyes. When she is picked up she will often open her mouth ever so slightly and looks like a little doll baby. Low energy puppies are my favorite. I honestly think this puppy needs a repeat evaluation around 6-7 weeks for a more accurate and transparent temperament/activity description. Until then I will say this litter girl has had my heart from day one. Her minimal white coloring is so hard to find with parents who are classically marked. She is small and compact with dark eyes. She does get extra pets and you will often find her being carried around the house like a baby. She looks just like a puppy named Nova from Storm's first litter which always pulls at our heartstrings. If someone would like to match based on this early evaluation, we would be placing her with an easy going, moderate to low speed, low stress household. According to this evaluation she is the best match for an older couple (compared to the other pups). We may place Miss War Hammer on hold for further evaluations as a keeper puppy but nothing is set in stone.
